

Bunny Hunt!

Saturday, March 20, 9:00A – 12:00P

The snow is clearing and warm weather is getting near and bunnies have burst upon our parks. Download our clue sheet beginning at 8:30A on March 20th and use the clues to figure out which park these very specific pesky “wabbits” are hiding.

These bunnies are shy and scared. So you can only see their ears and tails!

Don't get too close or they may disappear as fast as ghosts.

If you spot the tails and ears, snap a photo and name the park on your sheet

Then head to Courageous Bakery at 736 Lake Street

Show pictures of all the tails you found and turn in your sheet for “eggstra” special treats!

We found the bunnies in clusters throughout our Parks

12 in all to give you a start.

Find them all or what you can,

if you get too tired we understand!

Breathe fresh air, enjoy the day and just get outside and play!

of OAK PARK

Park #1

Originally called “Green Fields”

You might think you won’t find our bunnies in a park so large

But the large trail of native plants won’t make it so hard.

There is soccer, baseball, tennis and a busy playground.

But hop on over to where native plants can be found!

Park #2 This park has big tall climbing rocks

Where children of Northeast Oak Park flock

But bunnies would rather be near the wetlands dock.

Park #3 This “Secret Garden,” amongst the hustle and bustle
Has many trees so colossal

Our bunnies strayed off the north path in the woods
Where last October witches, ghosts and ghouls stood.

Park #4 This park surrounded by a fence,

Plays host to many events

By a house made of glass

Near a tree dedicated to Ben

Don't scare these bunnies out of their glen.

Park #5

While the dogs gather in bunches

Our bunnies don't want to be their lunches

They are more interested in listening to the call

Of“Foul ball!”

Park #6 On the land purchased by Farson

And spaces with lots of options

The bunnies like to be close to the seniors

With their sounds much more peaceful.

Park #7 With 2 parks on this spot
Bunnies would be nervous to be by the tots
And instead would feel less stress
Across the alley watching a game of chess.

Park #8 This park named for the street
Where cars and trucks are the theme
While the Littles love to run and scream
The bunnies seek refuge so close in the berms
They say hi to the worms.

Park #9 With a splashpad that is too wet
And kids hitting nothing but net
Right now the bunnies are enjoying the grass
Near where you probably have soccer class.

Park #10 Two large meadows
Still hold the echoes
Of Egg Hunts past
Where kids have had a blast
The single lone tree dividing the fields
May not provide the bunnies enough of a shield.

Park #11

Tucked away to the south of town

Baseball, pickleball and a tot hill abound

But the rain garden likely draws these fluffy tails

Off the path and hidden from the walking trails.

Park #12

You might think the bunnies would be at the top of this tall hill,

But zipping sleds and laughing kids might give them a shrill

Better to look at the base around the back

Amongst the grasses looking for a snack!
